

Quantum Geometry

Pórður Jónsson
Science Institute, University of Iceland
thjons@raunvis.hi.is

We describe research projects and research methods in the theory of random surfaces and random networks which appear in theoretical physics as well as in applied and pure mathematics. As an example we take random trees and show how interesting questions in quantum geometry are related to the probability of extinction of families.